INTRODUCTION

This report is intended to give you a deeper understanding of Dana Watkins's Thinking Style, Behavioral Traits, and Interests in relation to the position of Warehouse Specialist. Along with some insight into her motivations and challenge areas, it will provide you with useful tips to aid in her training and development.

What's in this report?

RESULTS SUMMARY Assessment results are compared to the Performance Model, which shows the range of scores typical for success in the position	DEFINITIONS Thinking Style and Behavioral Traits will be defined on the pages following the results summary	PERSONALIZED FEEDBACK You will receive feedback personalized for the individual based on the results and how they should be interpreted
---	---	---

What does the assessment measure?

THINKING STYLE

- Thinking Style is the ability to process information.
- It includes problem-solving, communication, interaction, and learning skills.
- Results are illustrated on scales ranging from 1 to 10.
- A higher score is not necessarily the best indicator of on-the-job performance.

BEHAVIORAL TRAITS

- Behavioral Traits are commonly observed actions that help define who someone is.
- Each scale is defined by two opposing, but equally valuable, end points.
- One side of the continuum is not better than the other.

INTERESTS

- The Interests section may predict motivation and potential satisfaction with various jobs.
- These are ranked in order from the highest- to lowest-scoring interest.

Distortion was not detected in this report. What does that mean?

Some candidates may answer in a way that is socially desirable or to make themselves look better, rather than respond candidly and risk disapproval. Based on her assessment results, it appears that Dana answered candidly.

COMPOSITE SCORE

Thinking Style

Composite Score A reflection of overall learning, reasoning, and problem-solving potential

The Composite Score is the combined score of the four other Thinking Style scales. Because looking at a person's Thinking Style comprehensively is most effective in a coaching context, it is the only Thinking Style scale discussed in this report.

- Dana fits the Performance Model for the Composite Score.
- She likely has good potential for learning new information.

What you need to know about Dana:

- She will respond best to being challenged in both training and daily work experiences.
- She generally learns new information best by applying it.
- Upon completing a training program, she should pick up new concepts relatively easily.
- Dana is capable of learning the necessary information to develop a strategic plan.
- Overall, she may be expected to complete a typical training program with success.

Management tips:

- Be sure to continually engage Dana and require hands-on involvement to avoid boredom on her part.
- Educate her about the reasons behind a task and the value it brings to the team's or organization's goals.
- Look for opportunities for her to be creative or solve problems to keep her invested in her work.

BOTTOM LINE:

Dana is an effective learner and is generally adaptive in most training situations.

PACE

Behavioral Traits

Pace Overall rate of task completion

< STEADY

DW

URGENT >

- Dana does not fit the Performance Model for Pace.
- She tends to be good with routine and works at a steady to moderate pace.

What you need to know about Dana:

- She tends to work at a steady, productive pace.
- Typically, she may not show a high sense of urgency.
- Dana probably doesn't like feeling pressured.
- At times, she could get caught up in the planning stages of a project.
- She will probably take steps with urgency when necessary.

Management tips:

- Suggest short-term goals and deadlines when situations call for urgency.
- Don't require her to switch gears too quickly.
- To prevent her from feeling stress or frustration, allow her adequate time to complete tasks with thoroughness.

BOTTOM LINE:

Dana may be most effective working in a relaxed environment, but will pick up the pace when necessary.

ASSERTIVENESS

Behavioral Traits

Assertiveness Expression of opinions and need for control

< UNASSUMING

FORCEFUL >

DW

- Dana does not fit the Performance Model for Assertiveness.
- She tends to be fairly comfortable sticking up for her opinions and needs.

What you need to know about Dana:

- She tends to be motivated by situations in which she is held accountable for results.
- She is willing to be assertive, to be more of a leader than a follower.
- Dana typically uses direct statements.
- She will likely present her position with a fair amount of confidence.
- At times, she may be overly assertive when giving direction to others.

Management tips:

- Provide positive feedback when she engages in active listening rather than pushing forth with her agenda.
- If you notice that she is too dominating in situations, provide feedback suggesting that she allow others more opportunity to offer input.
- Give her opportunities to lead discussions if she appears to have a desire to do so.

BOTTOM LINE:

She takes on leadership roles comfortably but is still willing to follow direction from someone else when necessary.

SOCIABILITY

Behavioral Traits

Sociability Desire for interaction with others

< RESERVED

DW

OUTGOING >

- Dana fits the Performance Model for Sociability.
- She tends to be fairly extraverted and people-oriented.

What you need to know about Dana:

- She is likely proficient in building relationships and expanding professional networks.
- She tends to be aware of the need to keep lines of communication open.
- Dana likely works to foster good relations across departments, maintains friendly contact, and keeps up with issues of common concern.
- She may have a difficult time working in isolation.
- At times, she could be perceived as socializing excessively.

Management tips:

- Recognize that she enjoys some interaction with others, so provide opportunities for group projects.
- Give her opportunities to socialize with her colleagues, but be careful about allowing this to impede her work.
- Help her appreciate that some of her coworkers might be more private and less collaborative than she is.

BOTTOM LINE:

Dana is moderately social and open to casual socializing.

CONFORMITY

Behavioral Traits

Conformity Attitude on policies and supervision

< STRONG-WILLED

DW

COMPLIANT >

- Dana fits the Performance Model for Conformity.
- She tends to be cooperative and usually works within the rules.

What you need to know about Dana:

- She is typically willing to accept guidance and suggestions from others.
- She is friendly, cooperative, and likely fairly easy to manage.
- Dana demonstrates a positive attitude concerning organizational constraints and restrictions.
- She should be willing to conform to company policies without feeling any loss of personal freedom.
- She will usually accept the advice and criticism of those in authority.

Management tips:

- Encourage free thinking and reward efforts to develop creative solutions to accomplishing tasks, even if they contradict established procedures.
- Acknowledge the importance of procedural requirements, but encourage personal expression in areas that don't need as much regulation.
- Demonstrate in your daily work how it is acceptable to bend the rules within the limits of your organizational culture.

BOTTOM LINE:

She responds well to a regulated environment and is willing to accept external controls.

OUTLOOK

Behavioral Traits

Outlook Anticipation of outcomes and motives

< SKEPTICAL

DW

TRUSTING >

- Dana does not fit the Performance Model for Outlook.
- She tends to be fairly skeptical and often looks for the evidence to back up a claim.

What you need to know about Dana:

- She may have a guarded outlook on how well things are likely to turn out.
- She may be skeptical of people who make emotional appeals.
- Dana may not always welcome change, unless it is supported by a strong justification.
- She tends to question changes in policies and guidelines and can be doubtful of the benefits.
- She may approach solving problems and interpersonal conflict with caution.

Management tips:

- Clarify your intentions so she doesn't jump to conclusions.
- Allow her to openly express her skepticism so you can provide the reassurance or evidence that she or others might need.
- Although skepticism can uncover important issues, be watchful that this doesn't produce an overly negative environment.

BOTTOM LINE:

Dana functions best when able to express a reasonable amount of concern and skepticism.

DECISIVENESS

Behavioral Traits

Decisiveness Use of speed and caution to make decisions

< DELIBERATE

DW

BOLD >

- Dana does not fit the Performance Model for Decisiveness.
- She takes time to carefully consider and analyze various options when making decisions.

What you need to know about Dana:

- She usually requires ample time to make decisions.
- At times, she may have a slow response in urgent situations.
- She may appear indecisive when making critical decisions.
- Most likely, she will gather information from various sources in order to make an informed decision.
- Before making a decision, she will likely weigh the pros and cons and carefully assess the risk involved.

Management tips:

- When a decision needs to be made, give her as much advance notice as possible so she can weigh all the relevant information.
- Emphasize deadlines when decisions need to be finalized.
- Make her aware of the most critical parts of an issue so she understands what's most important and is comfortable moving forward with the decision.

BOTTOM LINE:

She usually makes decisions carefully and methodically by gathering all available information and data.

ACCOMMODATION

Behavioral Traits

Accommodation Inclination to tend to others' needs and ideas

< STEADFAST

AGREEABLE >

DW

- Dana fits the Performance Model for Accommodating.
- She tends to be fairly agreeable and willing to go along with the group.

What you need to know about Dana:

- She tends to have a cooperative outlook and is generally prepared to help others.
- Usually, she recognizes the need for working with others and is willing to share resources and information.
- When it comes to most issues, she is more likely to express a moderate opinion than an extreme one.
- Dana is generally pleasant, friendly, and patient.
- She will probably seek solutions that are acceptable to everyone.

Management tips:

- Encourage her to express her opinions rather than just going along with the group.
- Provide opportunities for her to build her self-confidence so that she is more likely to speak up with a differing opinion.
- When appropriate, enlist her aid to help colleagues reach compromises.

BOTTOM LINE:

She is attentive to others but also appreciates the forum to express a contrary point of view.

INDEPENDENCE

Behavioral Traits

Independence Level of preference for instruction and guidance

< RELIANT

DW

AUTONOMOUS >

- Dana fits the Performance Model for Independence.
- She tends to seek support and easily accepts supervision.

What you need to know about Dana:

- She recognizes the need for structure in an organization.
- Most likely, she appreciates being given specific plans for how things are going to be done.
- Dana may believe that job responsibilities should be clearly defined so that everybody knows exactly what is expected of them.
- She may prefer detailed instructions, particularly for things she has not done before.
- She probably appreciates guidance at regular intervals throughout a project.

Management tips:

- Give her ample clarification and guidance surrounding tasks and objectives.
- When appropriate, provide her with some small, safe opportunities to direct her own work to increase her comfort level performing with less direction.
- In cases where she is directing her own work, make sure she understands she can come to you for support.

BOTTOM LINE:

Dana works best with a lot of direction and has little need for independent action.

JUDGMENT

Behavioral Traits

Judgment Basis for forming opinions and making decisions

< INTUITIVE

DW

FACTUAL >

- Dana does not fit the Performance Model for Judgment.
- She tends to supplement objective facts with relevant subjectivity when making decisions.

What you need to know about Dana:

- She usually emphasizes logical deduction a bit more than intuition in her thinking.
- At times, she may neglect to consider the extenuating circumstances of a situation.
- She could overlook the potential value of instinct when determining solutions.
- She is seldom swayed by emotional pleas.
- Dana generally makes sensible, objective judgments.

Management tips:

- At times, you may need to remind her to look to her experience and intuition when considering a decision.
- Recognize that she may find it stressful if she is required to make decisions with limited information or data.
- When appropriate, encourage her to look at extenuating circumstances and use her personal judgment to make decisions.

BOTTOM LINE:

She typically uses judgment that reflects a balance of logic and practical experience.

What is Dana most interested in?

Mechanical: Dana seems to be motivated by Mechanical activities. She may enjoy building or repairing things, and she likely welcomes opportunities to get her "hands dirty" with objectives that are tangible, practical, and functional. If she can contribute in this way, she is more likely to feel enthusiastic about the project at hand.

Technical: Technical aspects of the job appear to interest Dana. Most likely, she will pursue activities that involve research, theories, and the application of technical information. She may be particularly interested in analytical or conceptual tasks that require critical thinking.

Enterprising: Seeking out Enterprising pursuits or leadership may be one of Dana's primary interests. It's likely that she will look for opportunities to use persuasiveness to achieve goals or lead others toward the victory line. Also, she will probably be attracted to activities that let her network or find new opportunities.

BOTTOM LINE:

Dana will likely enjoy the Mechanical aspects of the job. However, she may not find Financial/Administrative and People Service activities as motivating as others who have been successful in this position.
