INDIRECT COMPENSATION SCHEDULE

This schedule discloses indirect compensation that ADP, Inc., its affiliates, and its subcontractors, if any, reasonably expect to receive in connection with ADP's services to your Plan. Indirect compensation is compensation received from any source other than your company, the Plan's Trust, ADP, Inc., or an ADP affiliate, if any, in connection with ADP's services to your Plan. With the exception of float on contributions, which is received in the form of investment/interest earnings, the indirect compensation payments described below are paid to ADP by third parties out of their general assets or revenues.

Compensation Item	Indirect Compensation Description	Services Provided / Description of Arrangement	Payer of Indirect Compensation
Interest Income, or "float" on contributions and plan loan repayments	The following applies to ACH transactions: ADP receives Float on contributions and plan loan repayments following the date that these amounts are debited from an employer's bank account, but prior to the date they are forwarded to the trustee of the plan. The period that ADP will earn Float is generally one business day. ADP invests funds that it has impounded from clients' bank accounts in or pursuant to a variety of investments. The rate of Float earned by ADP is approximately the overnight effective federal funds rate. If you are a prospective ADP client or an existing ADP client reexecuting your Administrative Services Agreement (for example, by signing a new Plan Application), see the Administrative Services Agreement for additional information. Otherwise, please contact us if you require additional information.	This Float is part of ADP's overall contractual compensation for services provided under your Administrative Services Agreement in connection with your plan.	Float is paid by the investment vehicles in which ADP invests impounded funds.
Interest or similar income, ("Float") on disbursements	If you are a prospective ADP client or an existing ADP client reexecuting your Administrative Services Agreement (for example, by signing a new Plan Application), the following describes ADP's Float compensation on disbursements. Otherwise, your existing disbursement float arrangement will not change. If you have questions, please contact us. ADP will retain Float on disbursement checks issued from the disbursement account maintained with respect to the Plan pending the cashing of those checks by recipients. Float is earned generally from the date the checks are mailed until the date the recipient cashes the check and the check clears (or if it is not cashed, the date that the check is returned to the Plan's trust). ADP will earn Float at a money market rate of interest provided by the bank at which the account is held. See the Administrative Services Agreement for additional information.	Disbursement services on behalf of the bank at which the disbursement account is held. In addition, this Float is part of ADP's contractual compensation for services provided under your Administrative Services Agreement in connection with your plan. Small Balance Rollover Program —Transaction Processing Fee for Rollovers to Millennium Trust Company	For plans that elect to participate in the ADP Small Balance Rollover Program with The Millennium Trust Company, ADP receives a transaction processing fee for each small balance rollover IRA processed by DST Wealth Management Systems, Inc. for transmission to The Millennium Trust Company on behalf of a nonresponding participant. If your plan document provides that rollover accounts are excluded when determining if an account balance is cashout-eligible, those accounts are still included in the amount rolled over in a cashout, so that amounts actually rolled over to a small balance rollover IRA could exceed $5,000. The transaction processing fee that ADP receives is as follows: <table><tr><th>If the account balance transferred is at least</th><th>But less than</th><th>The transaction processing fee is</th></tr><tr><td>$0.00</td><td>$500</td><td>$0.00</td></tr><tr><td>$500</td><td>$1,000</td><td>$2.00</td></tr><tr><td>$1,000</td><td>$10,000</td><td>$9.00</td></tr><tr><td>$10,000</td><td>$50,000</td><td>$15.00</td></tr><tr><td>$50,000</td><td>$100,000</td><td>$50.00</td></tr><tr><td>$100,000</td><td>$500,000</td><td>$100.00</td></tr><tr><td>$500,000</td><td></td><td>$500.00</td></tr></table> Note: If an automatic rollover for a participant includes both amounts attributable to Roth elective deferrals and amounts that are not attributable to Roth elective deferrals, two IRAs (a Roth IRA and a traditional IRA) will be established for the participant as required by law. Self-Directed Brokerage Account Services provided by TD Ameritrade – Compensation paid to ADP by TD Ameritrade, Inc.	For plans that elect self-directed brokerage account services provided by TD Ameritrade, TD Ameritrade will make a quarterly payment to ADP, in arrears, equal to 0.0075% of the value of ADP client plan assets in TD Ameritrade brokerage accounts (“Plan Assets”) during the quarter, based on the average of Plan Assets held on the last business day of each month in the quarter.	ADP provides administrative and systems support services in support of the TD Ameritrade self-directed brokerage account service. This compensation is paid to ADP under an agreement between TD Ameritrade, Inc. and ADP, Inc., under which ADP makes available to its clients self-directed brokerage account services provided by TD Ameritrade.	TD Ameritrade, Inc.
Rollover Referral Fee for certain rollover IRAs established at American Century Investment Services	For plans that participate in the American Century Investments (“ACI”) Rollover IRA Program (the “Program”), ADP may receive a Referral Fee if a participant ADP refers to ACI rolls over a distribution to ACI. The Referral Fee is 0.25% per year on rollover IRA assets invested in a fund other than a money market fund, calculated and paid quarterly on accounts of $10,000 or more. The account will remain eligible to be considered for compensation until it reaches a date which is 4 years after the establishment date of the rollover account. This same referral fee structure is in place for any ACI account established and funded after the creation of a rollover account for an investor with the same address and meets the criteria of a “Qualified Household Account.” In addition to the Referral Fees, ADP receives a quarterly payment from ACI of approximately $2.00 - $3.00 for each plan participating in the Program (based on the current number of defined contribution plans for which ADP currently performs administrative and recordkeeping services and have the rollover services available). The actual amount of the fee on a per plan basis will vary based on the total number of plans. These additional fees support the business operations and growth of the participant services organization.	This compensation is paid to ADP under an agreement between American Century Investment Services, Inc. and ADP, under which ACI provides a platform for terminated participants to establish a rollover IRA with ACI investment funds and ADP markets the program to plan sponsors, presents the Program to participants, and assists ACI in reconciling rollovers.	American Century Investment Services, Inc.

ADP employees may from time to time receive items of nonmonetary compensation from third parties in the form of meals, gifts, entertainment or travel. Such items must be in accordance with ADP’s Code of Business Conduct and Ethics, which imposes limits on the receipt of nonmonetary compensation. We expect the value involved to be de minimis in the context of our compensation for services to your Plan.

INDIRECT COMPENSATION FOR SERVICES TO INVESTMENT FUNDS

ADP receives a broad range of compensation for services to or on behalf of the investment funds made available to your plan or their affiliates. These services may include distribution services (including marketing), communication services, shareholder servicing (including furnishing personal or other services and assistance, answering routine inquiries regarding a fund, assisting in changing dividend options, account designations and addresses, assistance with changing shareholder account designations and maintaining such recordkeeping accounts or such other services as the fund may require), subaccounting and administrative services (including, among others, order processing and recordkeeping). This compensation generally is paid to ADP by the investment fund (or the fund's distributor, transfer agent, or other agent). In general, these amounts are paid to ADP Broker-Dealer, Inc., but in some cases where permitted by law, may be paid to ADP, Inc. For the most part, this compensation ranges from 0.00% to 0.75% based on your Plan's average daily balance in the investment funds. There are some funds that pay ADP more. In general these amounts are reflected in a fund's annual operating expenses. In some cases, some portion of these amounts may be paid out of a fund affiliate's own assets.

If you do not elect Plan-Level 3(38) Investment Management Services: As you consider the investment funds you wish to include in your Plan, we will provide you with additional, fund-specific information. If you wish to know the compensation ADP expects to receive for services to a particular investment fund you are considering for which ADP has not yet provided information, please ask your ADP representative.

If you elect Plan-Level 3(38) Investment Management Services: While the third-party investment manager is responsible for selecting the investment funds for your Plan, ADP is required to provide you with information about those investment funds in addition to information about the compensation ADP receives from them. We will provide you with information about the investment funds in the investment tier you indicate you wish to select. If you wish to consider a different tier, please inform your advisor and information about the investment funds in that tier will be provided to you.

Depending on the investment funds or investment tier you elect, ADP may make periodic payments out of its revenue to your Plan or the broker-dealer with whom your advisor is associated. If applicable, these payments are explained in the section of this disclosure entitled "Payments to the Plan or Broker-Dealer." Any such payments reduce the overall compensation ADP retains in connection with your Plan.

In addition to the indirect compensation paid to ADP for services to investment funds, investment fund organizations may occasionally reimburse or share expenses with ADP (for example, through sponsorship or cosponsorship with ADP sales associates of seminars and similar presentations to advisors or prospective clients) or furnish ADP sales associates with research papers, analyses on industry trends, and similar materials that may be of assistance in ADP's marketing efforts. We expect any value involved to be occasional and limited as well as de minimis in the context of our compensation for services to your Plan.
