Commonly Used Terms

Contribution Limits

Each year, the IRS announces the amount individuals may contribute under all salary deferral arrangements. Updates to these limits are available from the Plan website and 2022 guidelines are included on the Plan Highlights page.

Rollover Contributions

At the discretion of the Plan Administrator, you may be permitted to deposit into your account, eligible distributions from another qualifying plan or IRA. This is called a “rollover” and may result in tax savings to you. You may instruct the Administrator of the distributing plan to transfer (a “direct rollover”), any portion of the amount you're eligible to receive into this account. If a distribution is paid directly to you from another Plan, you may elect to rollover any qualifying amount within 60 days from receipt of the payment. You should consult a qualified advisor to determine if a rollover is in your best interest.

Rollover Account

Your rollover will be applied to a separate “rollover account.” The balance in the rollover account will always be 100% vested. Rollover contributions will be affected by any investment gains or losses. Amounts in your “rollover account” may be withdrawn at any time.

Enrollment Guidelines

The amount you elect to defer will be deducted from your pay in accordance with the procedures included with this Enrollment Guide. Such election will be effective as soon as administratively feasible after it is received by your payroll administrator and will remain in effect until you enter an election to modify or terminate your previous instruction. Changes to deferral amounts entered through the Plan website are captured on the Sunday prior to each pay date. Changes entered after that date will be applied to the next pay period.

Plan Investments

You'll be able to direct the investment of your entire account and choose from a broad array of mutual funds selected specifically for the Plan. The Participant web portal offers current and historical information on each fund and the Financial Advisor for your Plan is available if further assistance is needed. A list of investment options is included with this Guide.

Earnings or Losses

When you direct investments, your accounts are segregated for purposes of determining the earnings or losses on those funds. You should remember that the benefits you receive from the Plan will depend in part on your decisions. Gains, as well as losses, can occur and neither the Employer, the Plan Administrator, nor the Trustee is able to provide investment advice or guarantee the performance of any investment you choose. Periodically, you'll receive a benefit statement that provides information on your account balance and the investment returns. You should review your statement carefully and notify PenServ of any errors within 30 days after the statement is provided or made available through the website.

Plan Expenses

Generally, the Plan may pay some expenses related to certain operational management activities. Some expenses may be charged on a pro-rata basis, while others may be applied equally to each Participant. In addition, some expenses may be due from certain participants who use a specific Plan feature. Finally, participants who have terminated employment may pay expenses differently from participants who remain with the Sponsor of this Plan.

Details for the fees to be applied to the Plan are included in the fee disclosures posted in the forms section of the website.

Vesting of Employer Contributions

The vested percentage of your account attributable to Employer contributions is determined under the Plan's Vesting Schedule. If you're employed on or after your Normal Retirement Age, or if your employment is terminated on account of death or disability, the vesting schedule would be disregarded and your vesting percentage set to 100%.

Your Plan Overview

The Plan is designed to provide options for eligible employees to easily attain their retirement plan goals.

Contribution Types

Contributions to your Plan may come from a number of sources:

Pre-Tax Salary Deferrals

As a participant under the Plan, you may elect to contribute a specific dollar amount or a percentage of your wages. These contributions are made on a pre-tax basis. When you receive a distribution of your benefits, the entire balance will be taxable.

Roth Salary Deferrals

You may also make Roth after-tax contributions to your account. If you meet certain requirements, distributions from the Plan, including earnings on your contributions will be made tax free.

Age 50 Catch-Up Contributions

If you are at least age 50 or will attain age 50 before the end of the calendar year, you may defer an additional amount (called a “catch-up contribution”) to your Plan.

Safe-Harbor Non-Elective Contribution

This Plan is referred to as a “safe harbor 401(k) plan.” In order to maintain “safe harbor” status your employer will make a contribution equal to 3% of compensation for each eligible employee. The contributions made under the non-elective safe-harbor provisions are always 100% vested.

Employer Non-Elective Contributions

Your Employer may also elect to make contributions to all eligible employees, whether or not the participant makes deferrals to the Plan. This option is at the discretion of the Employer and may or may not be made for any Plan Year. Non-elective contributions are considered by the Board of Directors following the close of the calendar year.

What Is Pre-Tax?

When funds are contributed on a Pre-Tax basis, your current year taxable income is reduced by the amount you contribute before federal income taxes are applied. Later when you receive distributions, you will be responsible for paying taxes on the deferrals and earnings.

Specific details of these provisions are included in the Plan Highlights.

Plan Highlights

A number of documents, policies, and procedures control the provisions of your Plan. This Guide is a summary of the more important elements of the program and may be subject to further interpretation. Other features and restrictions may be applied and controlled by the Plan document. If you have further questions, please refer to the SPD.

Selecting Investments

Your Plan offers a number of quality mutual funds with various characteristics. Factors such as risk, performance, and fund expenses are factors you should consider when creating a portfolio that best suits your individual needs. The funds you choose may affect the rate at which your account has the potential to grow, and the income that you'll be able to withdraw after you retire.

As you consider the choices in your Plan, there are several factors you'll want to consider:

Time Horizon

Determine how long you have to reach your goal. The sooner you begin your savings program, the more time you have to accrue your target amount. Markets typically rise and fall and the earnings will likely track those trends. As you move closer to your retirement date, you may want to restructure the composition of your investments and select funds designed to preserve your resources.

Risk Tolerance

A number of factors generally determine the level of risk you're able to accept. Risk measures a number of aspects relating to your investment choices. Understanding these components is key to determining the comfort level you expect with your investment choices. Since risk and reward are synonymous, investments with extraordinary rates of return may attract your attention; however, that fund may have volatile tendencies in an unstable market. If you would find this stressful, you may want to choose a less risky fund. Other factors to consider include inflation, individual issuer risk, and general market conditions.

Other Retirement Resources

You may have other retirement savings, such as individual retirement accounts (IRAs). When you choose investments for your Retirement Plan, you'll want to consider the investments in all your retirement programs, as well as your personal assets. For example, if you previously worked for another employer where you have accrued a sizeable benefit, you may be able to incorporate a greater level of risk in your Plan portfolio.

Your Plan has engaged with the services of a firm with the experience and expertise to assist you in this process. This includes group educational meetings and discussions focused to assist you with these important decisions.
